Spider Sparrow

Spider Sparrow has always been different. Abandoned as an infant in a lambing pen and adopted by a kindly shepherd and his wife, Spider's life is unusual from the start. As he grows, it becomes clear that he is not like other children: he can't walk, talk, or learn like them. But Spider has a gift: he can imitate perfectly the sounds of animals.

Spider Sparrow by Dick King-Smith - Goodreads

Spider Sparrow has always been different from other children. He can't walk like them, he can't talk like them, he can't learn like them. But Spider has a very special gift: He can perfectly imitate the sounds of animals, drawing them to him, soothing them. Spider amazes himself when he uses his gift to hand-feed a fox.

Spider Sparrow (ages 7-10) is yet another winner from Dick King-Smith, author of Babe: The Gallant Pig and a slew of others. But here, instead of animals as central characters, the hero is an orphaned infant boy left among the baby lambs on an estate farm in England. The child is adopted by the shepherd and his wife, Tom and Kathie Sparrow, a poor childless couple who call their new son Spider because of the strange way he learns to crawl using his hands and legs.

The Spider and the Sparrow by A.L. Sowards

Ornithologist Alexander Wilson named this sparrow for Savannah, Georgia, where he saw one. In spring, Savannah Sparrows migrate north from the southern U.S. and Mexico to open agricultural fields, meadows, coastal grasslands, and even tundra to breed and raise young. They nest on the ground and walk, run, or hop to catch insects and spiders.
